

Emergency Preparedness

Do you know where your water shut off is?

How about the gas? The electrical box?

In case of emergency, it is important to know how everything works in your home and where to turn off certain utilities.

Our darling homes are designed for our age group. Some things are easy, some not. Having seniors climb a 6 ft. ladder to install a fresh filter has always been baffling. But, the importance of knowing what to do is very wise.

There are videos on the internet, type: turning off utilities. It's probably best to review in advance of an emergency. One doesn't want to be scampering all over trying to find the directions.

Are your important documents close at hand? Are you prepared to leave your house in an instant?

During an emergency, timing is everything. Many think they'll just run out of their homes and not worry, but, this is not feasible when spending a few minutes reviewing is beneficial. Be safe!

SCORPIONS, CONTINUED

♂ They Can Climb Walls and Ceilings

Don't assume you're safe up high. Bark scorpions have the acrobatic skills of a ninja gymnast and can scale smooth surfaces.

♂ They Dance Before They Mate

Scorpion courtship looks like a dramatic tango, complete with claw-holding and fancy footwork. Nature's version of Dancing with the Stings.

♂ Most Aren't Deadly—but Don't Test It

Southern Nevada's bark scorpion can pack a punch. It's the most venomous species in the US, but serious reactions are rare and treatable.
